■ Break the frames of traditional photography

Internationally known photographer Ute Sonnenberg offers a safe and nurturing environment in which to explore the ins and outs of wildlife photography. Ute's approach focuses on developing each individual's personal style and technique, allowing for freedom of expression and personal exploration. "Contact with Ute reveals a sensitive and perceptive personality. All the emphasis is on connecting and bonding with the subject, which is different to any other photography or art course I have attended before. This really enhanced the experience of taking a hobby and combining it with an interest or passion whilst being guided smoothly by Ute and her great sense of humor." - Duncan Craig, after attending Horse Photography Safari.
